About the Author John Newman, a PADI-Certified diver, was the Editor and Art Director of Dive Travel magazine for ten years. I'm a PADI certified diver but haven't dove in many years and I definitely wouldn't feel safe diving today without some study. I've been snorkeling in the Caribbean a number of times in recent years and am heading back soon, this time with a possible simple dive or two during the week. I wanted something in the way of a refresher without studying mathematical gas calculations and such. My wife bought me a book that would have bewildered Jacques Cousteau and I put it away after 30 minutes of skipping section after section of technical mumbo jumbo. This book is exactly what the doctor ordered! I can be refreshed on the fundamentals and it will also help my daughter, who's going on a second trip with me in a month, to understand the basics of snorkeling! So glad I bought this!
