Synopsis

A Debut Children's Story by Mary Cornelison Bross Mary's idea was to have adults read the books and see themselves in the place of Anna Leigh (the little girl in this book) Mary was actually the one God took on these journeys but Anna Leigh is the character, she used in the story. Mary's goal is for the reader to feel as if they are going on these journeys too. Sometimes, you just have to go back to being young, free, and just let God show you. These books are for people of all ages.

Customer Reviews

Mary Cornelison Bross is Mother of 3 and grew up with dyslexia. She had a hard time reading books but had the biggest imagination. As an adult, she became an artist and decided to draw pictures to go with visions she was given of journeys she took with God. Mary's idea was to have adults read the books and see themselves in the place of Anna Leigh (the little girl in this book) Mary was actually the one God took on these journeys but Anna Leigh is the character she chose to be in the books.

I read this book to my grown daughters. We found it to be a very sweet valuable story of faith. Although they are both young adults, they sat intently listening, taking in every word and picture as if they were little girls again. I would encourage any parent of children of any age, to add this book to your home, and church libraries. We personally loved it.

This book I take personally knowing the author. She is a God fearing and compassionate artist with a love for God and relationship so incredibly deep. I bought this book for my children. I want to pass it along to my grandchildren one day. I love how she sees God though the eyes of a child. It is amazing and I love reading it with my daughter it is a must have

What a delightful book! My daughter & I both enjoyed it!! I plan on buying many for Christmas gifts. So important to let our daughters know how special they are to God.

Absolutely love it!!! This book is intriguing and inspiring!! Perfect choice for Mother Daughter time! A must have in your children's book collection!
