The Penguin Dictionary Of Architecture And Landscape Architecture

Synopsis

This is a major revision and expansion of what has long been recognized as a basic reference in its field. Besides updating the existing text, the authors have broadened the book by including many new entries on landscape architecture as well as by significantly increasing their treatment of American architects and architecture. This is a highly readable work, worldwide in scope, covering architecture from ancient times to the present. Major entries on key individuals, styles, movements, materials, and terms range up to several pages in length and include cross references and bibliographies for further reading. This is an essential addition to the reference shelf of every architectural student and buff.

Nikolaus Pevsner is best known as the author of many of the Buildings of England series and the editor of the Pelican History of Art and Architecture series. He died in 1983. Hugh Honour and John Fleming have collaborated on many books, including the Penguin Dictionary of Decorative Arts and A World History of Art. They live in Italy.

The copy I received had a different cover and was a little worn despite the description, but the content on the pages is identical so overall I was satisfied with this purchase.

Handy. Informational. Didn't really use it for my class. But would be good to keep. I think.

Purchased for an architectural history class in college, while I didn't need it much for the class, the book is really easy to use (just like any other dictionary) and very explanatory in its definitions.

Great book for Architecture Students. Go VT

Just as expected. Great condition. Perfect for architecture school.

An excellent companion to James Stevens Curl's Dictionary of Architecture and Landscape Architecture (Oxford University Press). A copy should be on every reference shelf.

Excellent condition
