Jacqueline Windh is a photojournalist, geologist and outdoorswoman who has published her images and articles in many magazines, including BBC Wildlife, Adventure Kayak, Wavelength Paddling Magazine and Beautiful BC. She lives in Tofino, BC.

I used this book on my tour to Vancouver Island for storm watching in February 2011. I had others but this book far exceeded any other reference material. It has been updated and has loads of details, down to the phone numbers for tour guides. The book also has excellent helpful suggestions such as what is open and closed during various seasons and very good advice on getting around the island. It is organized by area so all you need to know about Tofino, for example, is in one chapter. The author clearly loves this part of the world and it shows. This Island is by far one of the most beautiful places I have ever seen and this guide made it even better. If you are heading to the Island, get this book for your reference. I would have given 5 stars if more pages had been in color.

More details for hiking would be great, headlands, tides, etc.
